Healthy Ageing in the Changing World - 2022

Dear Colleagues and Friends,

Key to the success of any country's health services is the skill base within the health sector. There is a worldwide shortage of qualified physicians and nurses, and these sought-after professionals are increasingly leaving their native lands to pursue better career opportunities abroad. Countries that have acknowledged the shortfall in medical personnel and the attendant health challenges and implications might find it useful to identify their current and anticipated human resource needs within the health sector and to collaborate with the education and training sectors to ensure that sufficient numbers of qualified health professionals are available to meet domestic demand. Planners must identify strategies for attracting and retaining doctors and nurses. It is essential that the changing age profile of a country be taken into account when evaluating the potential for producing sufficient numbers of clinicians and other professionals to meet evolving health service needs.

In many countries, geriatrics and care approaches for older persons are not well developed. Clinical staffs often lack specific knowledge of age-related health issues and the expertise necessary for optimal service provision. A number of universities and training institutions have introduced geriatrics and gerontology into their medical and academic programmes, but much remains to be done to build the essential foundations for effective elder care.

Chairman,
Organizing Committee

FOCUS ON THE CONFERENCE:

- Recognize the inevitability of population ageing and the need to adequately prepare all stakeholders (governments, civil society, private sector, communities, and families) for the growing numbers of older persons.
- Ensure that all older persons can live with dignity and security, enjoying access to essential health and social services and a minimum income through the implementation of national social protection floors and other social investments.
- Support communities and families to develop support systems which ensure that frail older persons receive the long-term care they need and promote active and healthy ageing.
- Developing comparative research on ageing, and ensure that gender and culture-sensitive data and evidence from this research are available to inform policymaking.
- Overwhelming burden of disease in older persons such as non-communicable diseases (NCDs), Ischemic heart disease, stroke and chronic lung diseases which are the biggest killers. Visual and hearing impairment, dementia and osteoarthritis which are the main causes of disability.

AIMS OF THE CONFERENCE:

Our aim through this conference is to raise awareness about the speed of population ageing and, more generally, about the experience of being old in our changing world. Abuse, neglect and violence against older persons are much more prevalent than currently acknowledged, and points the way towards more effective prevention strategies and stronger legislation that can protect their human rights.
